

Divine Masculine

Divine Mind is the source of Principles that we define as masculine and feminine. The masculine principle is the active, energy-generating power. The feminine principle is the more passive, receptive aspect – the matrix from which energy can be generated. Divine Mind is both Wisdom and Love, both Power and Substance.

- Unity's 5th Principle

If your actions inspire others to dream more, learn more, do more and become more, you are a leader.

- John Quincy Adams

We realize that we can best serve those we love by setting an example of right thought and right conduct, and by giving them the free opportunity to pattern their lives after us in their own way.

- Harold Sherman

The greatest among you must become like the youngest, and the leader like one who serves. For who is greater, the one who is at the table or the one who serves? Is it not the one at the table? But I am among you as one who serves.

Luke 22.26

Truly I tell you, there is no one who has left house or brothers or sisters or mother or father or children or fields, for my sake and for the sake of the good news, who will not receive a hundred-fold now, in this age.

Mark 10.29

When we forget our own desires and devote ourselves to doing what God would have done, this moment and constantly, we shall find that there is no limit to the strength we have and the things we can do. We have yielded ourselves to the source and entered into a oneness that makes us receptive to all that the source is and holds for us.

Myrtle Fillmore

Service is not subservience, nor a chore to be dispatched. It is the divine in us touching the divine in another. People living in principle notice their cups overflowing and want to give from their abundance. They do not take action as much as provide service. They see what needs to be done and begin to do it. They are not out to right wrongs or change the system as much as to pitch in, to do what they can to help in an imperfect world.

active within me, I can do anything
I set my mind to.
